Grandmother Knew.

There Was Nothing So Good For Coughs and Colds as Mustard. But the old-fashioned mustard plaster turned and blistered while it acted. Get the relief and help that mustard plasters gave, without the plaster and without the blister. Mustard does it. It is a clean, white ointment, made with oil of mustard. It is scientifically prepared, so that it works wonders.

Gently massage Mustard into the finger-tips. See how quickly it brings relief—how speedily the pain disappears. Try Mustard for sore throat, bronchitis, tonsillitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuritis, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frost-bitten feet, colds of the chest (it may prevent pneumonia).

Chestnut Vendors Join Ranks of Profiteers
The chestnut vendors with their aucupans and charcoal fires are perhaps the latest recruits to the ranks of the profiteers. Doubtless they can present excellent economic arguments to justify the high price of chestnuts this season. To the average man on the street, however, the new scale of prices for roast chestnuts just announced comes as a shock. Within the last few days scores of these vendors have taken their places on the street corners and one rushes to them as to an old friend. A glance at the familiar stand reveals the same little tin measure as of old, but the good old days of five-cent chestnuts are gone. The smallest of the measures often are a quarter, and a slightly larger size is 40 cents. The roast chestnut has become a luxury. Menusville the proportion of vendors has increased a hundred per cent. The chestnut is the other day, it was plentiful; the vendors had cost nearly a nickel apiece.—New York Times.

Legend of Pan's Death
It was currently believed among the early Christians that at the time of the crucifixion of Christ a loud voice was heard throughout the isles of Greece, proclaiming that the great Pan was dead and that the rule of the Olympian gods was at an end. "Pan is the first to tell the story that in the reign of Titus, a Roman, a pilot, when steering near the islands of Paxos, was commanded by a loud voice to proclaim that the great Pan is dead." As soon as he reached Paxos he cried the news aloud from the poop of his ship, whereupon was heard a great noise of lamentation, as of nature itself expressing its grief. The coincidence of this story with the birth or crucifixion of Christ gave occasion to an explanation that it marked the end of the old world and the beginning of the new when the old oracles became dumb. Rabelais has the story, there is a well-known allusion to it in Milton's "Lycidas on the Nativity," and it has been duly treated by Schiller and Mrs. Browning.—Chambers' Encyclopedia.

Magnets Lay Nails Straight
To lay nails straight in containers, a packer equipped with magnets is reported to have been built by a Swiss inventor. "The machine is said to be able to fit knaps, boxes, or paper cartons and to handle wire rods, hairpins, knife blades and fishbones with equal ease. The articles to be boxed up are poured into a huge vibrating hopper in lots of about a thousand pounds and are straightened out on large trays.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

CONFLUENCE, April 7.—I. L. Hall, one of our aged and most respected citizens who was taken very suddenly ill a few days ago, is improving. On account of a leak in the Citizens Water Company's line, the people on the West Side are deprived of water except those who have wells and who are all very generous in sharing with the needy. W. B. Portney of Charleston was among the business visitors in town Friday.

Doubtless they can present excellent economic arguments to justify the high price of chestnuts this season. To the average man on the street, however, the new scale of prices for roast chestnuts just announced comes as a shock. Within the last few days scores of these vendors have taken their places on the street corners and one rushes to them as to an old friend. A glance at the familiar stand reveals the same little tin measure as of old, but the good old days of five-cent chestnuts are gone. The smallest of the measures often are a quarter, and a slightly larger size is 40 cents. The roast chestnut has become a luxury. Menusville the proportion of vendors has increased a hundred per cent. The chestnut is the other day, it was plentiful; the vendors had cost nearly a nickel apiece.—New York Times.

Legend of Pan's Death
It was currently believed among the early Christians that at the time of the crucifixion of Christ a loud voice was heard throughout the isles of Greece, proclaiming that the great Pan was dead and that the rule of the Olympian gods was at an end. "Pan is the first to tell the story that in the reign of Titus, a Roman, a pilot, when steering near the islands of Paxos, was commanded by a loud voice to proclaim that the great Pan is dead." As soon as he reached Paxos he cried the news aloud from the poop of his ship, whereupon was heard a great noise of lamentation, as of nature itself expressing its grief. The coincidence of this story with the birth or crucifixion of Christ gave occasion to an explanation that it marked the end of the old world and the beginning of the new when the old oracles became dumb. Rabelais has the story, there is a well-known allusion to it in Milton's "Lycidas on the Nativity," and it has been duly treated by Schiller and Mrs. Browning.—Chambers' Encyclopedia.

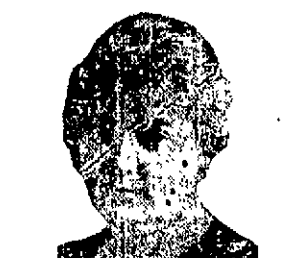

Magnets Lay Nails Straight
To lay nails straight in containers, a packer equipped with magnets is reported to have been built by a Swiss inventor. "The machine is said to be able to fit knaps, boxes, or paper cartons and to handle wire rods, hairpins, knife blades and fishbones with equal ease. The articles to be boxed up are poured into a huge vibrating hopper in lots of about a thousand pounds and are straightened out on large trays.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Mrs. Leda Yeager, of Reading, Pa., Tells How She Freed Herself From Distress

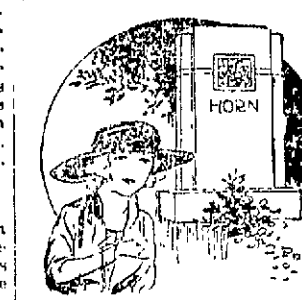

Mrs. Leda Yeager
"For two years I had indigestion so bad that no matter what I ate I was in agony for hours," says Mrs. Leda Yeager, 103 Schiller St., Reading, Pa.
"I was so nervous I could not rest day or night. I doctored with three doctors, who diagnosed my case as indigestion, which caused high blood pressure and nervousness, resulting in Rheumatic Pleurisy around the heart. Finally, they decided I had Vertigo."

I took them for a few days and they gradually disappeared as I kept on. I owe most of my improvement to wonderful Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I will gladly recommend it to suffering humanity."

More Children Are Needed for Cast of Legion Post Play

Connelville society will be well represented in the cast for "Marchena," the musical comedy which will be presented in the Connelville High School auditorium, April 28 and 29, under the auspices of the Union League of the City of Connelville, American Legion.

Lieutenant Dugan, chairman of the director of the play will present to the director a galaxy of young men and women who already have made pleasing impressions in the amateur theatricals or on the concert stage. Professional casting of the cast will be arranged at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening, in the Culture Club auditorium, Carnegie Free Library, when the director for the play will meet those already selected and those who would have their names considered for places in the production.

Some children are yet needed for groups, and Chairman Dugan is making a call for twenty girls from six to 12 years for "Marchena," who will appear in costume for an easy song and steps. For the "Queen's bodyguard," 12 girls, about 10 years of age, are wanted. They will be costumed like toy soldiers. For a comedy number, a "train group" six small girls dressed as men, and six as women, all carrying umbrellas, are needed. The girls who would be presented for these groups should be presented to the director. They will be well taken care of by the show committee and adults, and will be carefully chaperoned.

L. W. Carpenter, chairman of the show committee, announced today that all details preliminary to the production have been worked out, and that with the arrival of the professional director the work of preparation will be speedily and undoubtedly successfully developed.

"Marchena" is described as a gem of a musical comedy in a romantic Spanish setting. It is said to be something new, was brought out this season for the first, and its only appearance in Pennsylvania, three months ago, made a distinct hit.

Coughing only aggravates a cough

COUGHS are frequently due merely to irritation and are cured by a congested condition of throat and lung tissue. Persistent hacking will then only increase the congestion and expedite the cough indefinitely. Such coughs can and should be stopped at once because they are a waste of strength.

Dr. King's New Discovery checks coughing quickly and without any bad after-effects. It quiets violent throat and lung spasms and gives the congestion a chance to clear away. It has an agreeable taste. All druggists.

Track Work Chief Sport In School Circles Now; Cokers to Have Outfit

Coch J. E. Lerow Wants Candidates; But Only Those Willing to Work.

TO COMPETE IN MEETS

Full attention of athletes at the High School is now being directed to the track work which is advancing rapidly under the direction of Coach J. E. Lerow. Connelville High has a big opportunity to make a name on the track this season and the boys who do not make an endeavor to land on some of the various teams are making a big mistake.

There are some youths of ability who have not reported for work and unless they do so soon it will be too late. The coach has declared emphatically he will have good teams to represent the Orange and Black or none at all. This means that no candidate without the desire to work and earnestly try will make good. There are a number of events the cokers may enter in addition to the county road meet in May if the ability of the contestants warrants them a chance to compete on terms anywhere near even.

Last year Connelville High School took one first place when Johnny Rows captured the broad jump. He is still in school and may be able to grab that position again. In other events, however, there must be improvement.

Capetan Glass and Schoolmates to Play Final Game Tonight

The Capetan Glass basketball team will play the Connelville Schoolmates at the Connelville School this evening at 8 o'clock. The game will mark the closing of the floor season in the neighborhood and is expected to be played before a large crowd.

Included in the Schoolmates line-up will be some members of the High School team who graduated this year. Donald LaRue, center, and "Red" O'Donnell, captain, will not play, it has been announced.

Alice Kramer Loses In Foul Goal Contest

Miss Alice Kramer, guard on the Nelson Girls basketball team, who engaged in a foul shooting contest in Pittsburgh Saturday to determine the winner of a tie for second place between herself and two other girls, came out fourth.

Crowding Eddie Collins

John Clifford Leppeny, infielder of the Chicago White Sox, former college all-around athlete, is now trying to crowd Eddie Collins out of his second base position. His career is interesting, as he stepped from the college diamond into professional ball. He was a student at Massachusetts Tech and the University of Illinois.

Miss Mary Kramers won second place in the most by making 13 out of 20 shots. She is from the University of Pittsburgh. Miss Helen Beaumont of Sewickley High took third honors by getting 10 out of 20. Miss Kramers' shooting was not at par and she had the score of five out of 20 attempts.

Of Interest to Yans.
The game between the South Side Pros and the All Stars, played at the Armory Saturday, ended 31-34 when the basket at one end of the floor fell as Van Gorder attempted to make a long shot. The game will be played again on Wednesday.

Reid Pendleton, attending school at Princeton, has been elected one of the two managers of the hockey team of that college for next season.

"The play-off for the junior championship of the city will bring the 'kid' basketball season to a close this week. The South and Olympic Pros will engage at the armory tonight and the winner will pit the Atlas Five of South Connelville on Wednesday. Friday night will be the big night when the Crescents play the winner of Wednesday's game.

The employees of the Bell Telephone Company here are organizing a basketball team for the coming season. J. M. Clatter will be business manager and James Robinson playing manager. Some local talent will be included in the team's personnel, it is intimated.

Inquiry is being made as to the possibility of a church baseball league this summer. Nothing definite along such lines has been negotiated yet but it is likely that the movement only needs an organizer.

The Connelville Tennis Association will hold its spring meeting tomorrow night in the Unity Fraternity club rooms. Arrangements will be made to get the grounds into condition as soon as possible. New officers will also be elected.

Garland Braxton, young, southpaw pitcher, formerly with the Boston Braves, but last year sent to Worcester, has been disposed of by that club to Springfield in the same league.

Charles (Tut) Horne, a young catcher with Bristol in the Appalachian league, thinks as well of his ability that he bought his release from Bristol and signed with Worcester in the Eastern league.

Pete Curtis, who has managed teams in Atlantic City, Jersey City, Dec Moines and other points, has been signed by Martinsburg of the Blue Ridge league to manage the team the coming season.

PITCHERS MUST GET BREAKS TO SUCCEED

Winner of 25 Games in One Year Is Very Lucky.

The showing of Ed Rummel in winning 27 games for a club that finished seventh in the American league is one of the greatest pitching feats ever recorded.

Any time a major league pitcher wins 25 games or more, he must not only pitch good ball but he must also be favored by the breaks. It seems the good pitchers usually get the breaks.

Good pitchers are often enticed on by their managers in a pinch. When there is a chance of winning a game for holding a lead, the star pitcher invariably is called upon.

That was the case with Rummel last year. With the score tied and the pitcher wavering, or having been removed for a pinch hitter, Rummel was the man Mack always called upon.

In perhaps 9 of the 27 victories scored by Rummel, he was returned the victor in games in which he pitched only from one to three innings.

If the Athletics had the score in the eighth or ninth, Rummel would be the choice for relief work, and on many occasions the Athletics would go right out and get the winning run for Ed in the very next inning, which, of course, would give him credit for the victory.

Of course, when a pitcher takes up a tie game he has the same chance to lose or win, and is deserving of the credit for the game, considering it is a 50-50 proposition. However, one gets a big break when time after time the margin falls on their side. Rummel was blessed with that good fortune last year; otherwise he never would have been able to win 27 games with a seventh-place club.

Carl Mays Makes Life Hard for the Umpire

National league umpires are bound to experience some hectic moments during the coming season now that Carl Mays will pitch for the Cincinnati Reds.

He always has been a tough fellow for the arbiters to handle. To begin with, Mays' style of pitching causes the umpire plenty of grief. He throws underhand, all of his shoes starting near the ground, and keeps the ball around the batter's knees. Carl alternates between a fast ball that breaks like a splitter and a curve that rises as it nears the plate.

Mays has a bad temper, too, and in his attempts to get all of the close decisions, makes life miserable for the umpires.

Walter Hagen Aims to Play in British Open

Walter Hagen will compete again for the British open golf championship. The former clubhouse manager will sail for England on June 12, which will give him about a week over there in which to prepare for the championship at Hoylake.

Hagen expressed himself as being highly pleased with the 22nd annual American open, which will be played at his former course, Oakland Hills Country club, at Detroit. He and Alec Smith, who shared the honor of the open, were the only two competing players who have won the American open twice, think that the early date will bring about the best golf possible.

Champion Will Retire

Charles Gorman, Canada's speed skating star, retiring to his home at St. John, N. B., with the American national and international crowd of 10,000 sports people. In reply to their greeting he waved his skates over his head and announced that he would retire from competition. "I have achieved my greatest ambition in the winning of these titles," he said, "and now I am content to rest on my laurels."

*Charged the Camera

Once during an African hunt, says Mr. E. M. Newman in the American Magazine, a charging rhinoceros gave us some trouble. Two camera men in my party were filming him, but being photographed seemed to bore him, and he headed directly for one of the cameras. The man, relying on the hunter who was with us, kept on turning; but the hunter did not fire quite soon enough. The rhinoceros crashed down dead on top of the camera. Fortunately, the camera man had jumped aside just in time.

The second man filmed the whole scene, and it made a great picture when we recovered the smashed camera from under the beast, saved that film and combined it with the other.

The Maid's Text

It was the rule at the vicarage that every one should repeat a chosen text of Scripture before breakfast every Sunday morning.

It came to the turn of a very timid little housemaid to repeat the chosen text, which was, "I am fearful and wonderfully made."

In her nervousness the poor girl blurted out, "I am a fearful and wonderful maid."

Cautious

The day before she was to be married the old negro servant went to her mistress and handed her a life-insurance policy.

"Why do you want me to keep it. I thought you were going to get married," said the mistress.

"So I is, mistress, but do you suppose I want that strange man to know Ah got my life insured?"

Hard Work Done the Easy Way

American invention and enterprise have done much to take the hard toll and drudgery out of house work, as well as to provide many conveniences that add to the comfort and happiness of the home. Most all the hard tasks of housekeeping can be avoided or made far less arduous by modern appliances. To lighten the burden is to provide more opportunity for enjoying life.

Here are only a few of the items that are now almost indispensable in many homes:

Vacuum Sweepers
Washing Machines—Electric or Water Power
Electric Irons
Gas Ranges
Sewing Machines—with or without motor
Bread Mixers
Fireless Cookers
Kitchen Cabinets
Modern Stoves
A host of kitchen and household utensils

Our stores can supply anything in the above lines. Ask one of our salesmen about them. The cost of this modern equipment, we believe, is less than you realize.

At the Theatres

The Paramount

"DRIFTING"—Featuring Priscilla Dean, is the leading attraction today and Tuesday at this theatre, the Paramount.

"Drifting" is the story of a girl who quit selling opium in Shanghai because she was sick of the game—and then was forced back into it by the necessity for getting a drum out of the country before she became addicted to the habit. The heart of China, mysterious and veiled in fog of the human past, is stripped bare for a moment to show the secret of the nation's curse—the scarlet poppy fields from whence comes the drug, opium.

For the roles supporting Miss Dean actors of unusual qualifications were absolutely essential. Wallace Beery of "The Flame of Life" and "Robin Hood," and fearfully remembered as "Burr," the Russian beast, handles the "heavy" role. Matt Moore of "The Storm" is the leading man. Anna May Wong, Chinese actress of fine emotional characteristics, has a very sympathetic role.

Other players chosen were William V. Mong, J. Farrell McDonald, Bruce Guerin, Frank Langdon, Mlle. Rey Dione, William Morris, and Mario de Albert.

Wednesday and Thursday, Owen Moore and Alice Lake will be seen in "Modern Matrimony."

The Soisson

"ON THE BANKS OF THE WABASH," opened today at the Soisson for a three-day attraction. No greater tribute to a man who people could be put than given to Paul Dresser and the folks "way down in Indiana by the Vitaphone super-feature, "On the Banks of the Wabash." "On the Banks of the Wabash" is a remarkable screen conception of the theme and spirit that Paul Dresser sought to transmit to the world when he wrote the song which inspired J. Stuart Blackton to make the film of the same name. It carries with it all of the down home spirit, the dominance of the soil, the kindly heart, the narrow, unobscured, well-meaning soul in a home community, and carries to the audience all the petty little things that disturb gentle lives and bring men and women to the heights in face of grave dangers. Such was the song, a tribute to a stirring, daring people, who lived and loved and fought and made up in the sight of the whirling waters of the Wabash. And such is the picture that has seized the very throbbing, soul stirring appeal of the pulsating song and translated it on the screen. "On the Banks of the Wabash" is undoubtedly one of the screen triumphs of the year. It is a picture of back home folks that everyone will want to see and that every one will always remember.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday Johnny Hines will be seen in "Little Johnny Jones."

The Orpheum

"ANNA CHRISTIE," which opened today at the Orpheum for a three-day attraction, presents George Marion and William Russell in the leading roles. Eugene O'Neill's "Anna Christie" is the most recent London success, and is declared by London critics to be the biggest drama of years and "to have subdued London in a manner to which theatrical history furnishes no parallel." Such tremendous interest was aroused in the play during its run that special interest is felt in the picture adaptation which has been made by Thomas H. Ince, with Blanche Sweet replacing Pauline Lord, the stage actress, in the title role. If the picture version scores the success of the stage play—and it is an established fact that American pictures are unrivaled in popularity both in England and on the Continent—it will undoubtedly give the picture producers a high standard at which to shoot. Ince has followed the stage play very faithfully in his production and to have mixed no words in reproducing the "terrifying realism" of the drama, which won such unstinted praise from British journalists as well as American critics and public.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday W. S. Hart will be seen in "Slingshot Jim McKee."

Zen of the Y.D.

A NOVEL OF THE FOOTHILLS

by Robert Stead

AUTHOR OF "THE COW PUNCHER," "THE HOMETEACHERS," "NEIGHBORS," ETC.

CHAPTER XVII

"Zen!"

"How is he—how is Wilson?" she demanded breathlessly.

"Sound as a bell," he answered, alarmed by her manner. The self-satisfied smile that came over his face now, "Come, see, with us today."

He led her into the white room and turned up the lamp. The lad was sleeping soundly, his head buried in his arms, his little pink and white face serene under the magic glow of the lamp. Grant expected that Zen would throw himself upon the child in her agitation, but she did not. She drew her fingers gently across his brow, then, turning to Grant:

"Father, an unconscious way to break into your house," she said, with a little laugh. "I hope you will pardon me. . . . I was uneasy about Wilson."

"But tell me—how—where did you come from?"

"From town. Let me stand in your kitchen, or somewhere."

"You're wet through. I can't offer you much change."

"So wet as when you first met me, Denison," she said, with a smile. "I have a good waterproof, but my hat blew off. It's somewhere on the road. I couldn't see through the windshield, so I put my head out, and away it went."

"The hat?"

"That both laughed, and an atmosphere that had been tense began to settle back to normal. Grant led her out to the living room, removed her coat, and started fire.

"They are in silence for some time, and presently they became aware of a gray light displacing the yellow glow from the lamp and the ruddy reflection of the fire. "It is morning," said Grant. "I believe the storm has cleared."

He stood behind her chair and took her hand in his. "Let us watch the dawn break on the mountains," he said, and together they moved to the windows that overlooked the valley and the grim ranges beyond. Already shafts of crimson light were firing the scattered drift of clouds far overhead.

"Denison," she said at length, turning her face to his. "I hope you will understand, but I have thought it all over. I have not hidden my heart from you. For the boy's sake, and for your sake, and for the sake of a scrap of paper that was what the war was over, wasn't it?"

"I know," he whispered. "I know. . . . I am so glad!" In the growing light he could see the moisture in her bright eyes, and it seemed to him this wild, daring daughter of the hills had never been lovelier than in this moment of confession and of high resolve.

"I am so glad," she repeated, "for your sake—and for my own. Now, again, you are really the Man-of-the-Hill. You can go ahead now with your high plans, with your Big Idea. You will marry Miss Bruce, and forget."

"I shall remember with chastened memory, but I shall never forget," he said at length. "I shall never forget Zen of the Y.D. And you—what will you do?"

"I have the boy. I did not realize how much I had tonight. Suddenly it came upon me that he was everything. You won't understand. Denison, but as we grow older our hearts wrap up around our children with a love quite different from that which expresses itself in marriage. This love gives—gives, lavishly, unselfishly, asking nothing in return. I think I understand," he said again. "I think I do."

They turned their eyes to the mountains, and as they looked the shafts of sunlight fell on the white peaks and set them dazzling like mighty diamond-peaks against the blue bowen of the West.

"It is morning on the mountains—and on you," Grant exclaimed. "You are very, very beautiful. He raised her hand and pressed her fingers to his lips.

"As they stood watching the sunlight pour into the valley a sharp knock sounded on the door. "Come," said Denison, and the next moment it swung open and Phyllis Bruce entered, followed immediately by Linder. A question leapt into her eyes at the remarkable situation, which greeted them, and she paused in embarrassment.

"Phyllis," Grant exclaimed. "You here?"

"It would seem that I was not expected."

"It is all very simple," Grant explained, with a laugh. "Little Willie Brantley was my guest overnight. On account of the storm his mother became alarmed, and drove out from the city early this morning for him. Mrs. Brantley, let me introduce Miss Bruce—Phyllis Bruce, of whom I have told you."

Zen's cordial handshake did more to reassure Phyllis than any amount of explanation, and Linder's timely observation that he knew Wilson was there, and was wondering about him himself, let her breathe a little easier.

"But now—your explanations?" said Grant. "How comes it, Linder?"

"Simple enough, from our side. When I got your telephone call all I could catch was the fact that you were going to get me, and had some but she held him gently away; when he looked in her eyes she shone back at him through tears.

"Oh, Denison, you mustn't! I'm so sorry. You know what you have been to me. But you were so long! Yesterday I promised Linder."

In the days that followed Denison Grant drank his cup of renunciation slowly. He worked his fields early and late; he mended the tiny spirals of smoke ascending like incense from Zen's cottage; but he went no nearer the Transley home than the end of his furrow. He had handed back Transley's wife from the edge of the abyss; he had made up his mind; that much was settled.

The battle that raged within him now centered about Linder and Phyllis Bruce. When he had recovered from the first shock of Phyllis' revelation and was able to think clearly he was sure that her heart might still be his if he went after it—and took it. It was another case of a man being worth his salt. But Linder was not Transley. He had spared Transley; could he be less generous with Linder? And what of Phyllis? Would she be happy with Linder?

Then Truth stood up before him in the furrow, as he plowed its slow length one hazy summer afternoon, and called him a hypocrite. He heard the voice as clearly as the clamping of his horse on their bits. "Hypocrite!" cried Truth to him. "You make a great virtue of your generosity to Linder. Easy generosity that, while you continue to love—Zen Transley!"

Down by the river a spiral of smoke wound upwards from the Transley chimney, and even as Grant looked he saw an automobile trilling past about the shoulder of his hill. It was Transley returning to his home.

Transley's wife had fortified her good resolutions behind an outburst of activity. But there were times when the craving to be quite alone, where she could rest her head and back for a moment in the luxury of old imaginings, became irresistible. On such occasions she would follow the road that skirted the cliffs of the river bank to a point where it turned in the basin of a now deserted quarry. The old quarry lay on the edge of the hills like a cup from which a slide had broken and fallen into the river which hollowed in a green foam a hundred feet below. The only access to this cup was by the road, no longer frequented, which Zen had chosen for her solitary rambles. Once inside the quarry she was isolated from the world; here her vision could sweep the sloping bluffs across the valley, or the circle of blue sky above, and her thoughts could rove at will without prospect of being interrupted. The road by which she entered the quarry was the road by which no intruder would enter it. It was also, as Zen was suddenly to discover, the only road by which one could escape.

ROYAL PRINCESS IN LOVE TRIANGLE

CROWN PRINCE GEORGE, SPAIN'S MARIALDA'S PRINCE NICHOLAS

The love of Prince Nicholas, son of the King and Queen of Rumania, for Princess Marialda, second daughter of the King and Queen of Italy, threatens to influence the destinies of three nations. King Victor Emmanuel and Premier Benito Mussolini are anxious to bring about a rapprochement between Italy and Belgium through the proposed marriage of Crown Prince Leopold, of Belgium, and Princess Marialda. But the royal little lady, having a will of her own, can't see it at all. She wants the whole world in general and Prince Nicholas in particular, and that she will marry him, or not at all. It is even reported in Rome that she has threatened to kill herself if forced into an unwilling marriage with Leopold.

It was upon the afternoon when Truth confronted Denison Grant in his arrow that Zen made that discovery. Her self-imposed tasks completed for the day, she scoured the fruit stains from her hands, changed her frock, and took the now familiar trail up an hour. "I'll be back in an hour," she told Sarah. "I'm going to the quarry just to loaf and invite my soul." The quotation was lent upon Sarah, who took refuge in her gift of silence.

At a point where the road rose high enough to command a view of the surrounding valley she stopped and swung a slow, half-easily glance to the southward. There, some enough, was the plow team of Denison Grant, working its slow shuttle back and forth across the brown prairie. For a long minute she fed her eyes and her heart; then resumed her slow course to the quarry.

Inside the great cup she was conscious of a sense of security.

FOR THE MAN WHO CARES

Kinds of Gloves That Cover Dainty Patties

Gloves for informal wear are elaborately embroidered in highly contrasting colors this season, but for semi-formal occasions the well-dressed woman prefers plain hardware, with embroidery either to match the leather or slightly darker.

Beige mocha, with embroidery to match or in a slightly darker brown shade, constitutes an important part of the metropolitan woman's wardrobe. Fashion authorities report that gloves of white glace kid are being worn in rapidly increasing numbers where modish women congregate. Unstuffed white is the order of the day with no contrasting embroidery or stitching.

Women are giving increasing attention to mousquetaire gloves in twelve-button and steeple-top lengths, in beige or white mocha. While short and long dress sleeves remain equally popular, many women are wearing short gloves with either type of sleeve. Particularly during the present style era, however, the woman who is really well dressed has long gloves for wear with short sleeves and vice versa.

New gauntlets, beige colored, have white kid or mocha cuffs, in which designs have been cut to show a contrasting leather underneath, selecting the motif.

Some of the latest kid gauntlets have the cuffs left with velvet.

Autumn's Silhouette Is Still in Limelight

The lines of the daytime mode, whether for formal or informal wear, do not indicate any radical departure from the silhouette of last autumn. Only the variations are different and intended of the circular cut of the last season there are now important patterns which in no way interrupt the straight outline.

The suit is a most prominent item in the spring collections. Jackets to suits are short and no are the skirts, so that there is a general impression of brief trimness on these first models.

Both skirt and jacket adhere closely to the lines of the figure. Plaited suits of light-colored materials—and plaited suits it is most that—your skirt and the jacket are plaited—your really with unstitched plaits caught down with bands, after the manner of those introduced by Rouse last autumn. These suits are made of both silk and cloth and are generally in dark blue color with contrasting linings. Half-inch box plaits and tiny knife plaits are particularly favored and these may be arranged in sections or in all-over form.

Buttons as Trimming Straight Down Front

In a mode of their own are the dresses with rows of buttons as the main motif in trimming. Now a long line of buttons is not a form of decoration to be carelessly scattered over a dress without either rhyme or reason. These suits are designed with this sort of trimming in mind. In the majority of the models the buttons form a straight line down the front of the dress. A tuniclike frock of green crepe uses the buttons to fasten the tunic to the knees. In design this dress is rather Chinese, with standing band collar and wide sleeves fastened with a narrow band cuff.

Shaped Like Chest

In imitation of Luxor treasure chests, women are carrying wrist bags of light-weight wood or of materials that imitate wood. The bags, shaped like chests, are hand painted with bright designs.

Hair Woven Into Cloth

To demonstrate the value of the beautiful white coat as raw material for weaving cloth, a Sumner dog, a species best known in the Arctic circle, was exhibited at a lecture of the Royal Society of Arts in London. The hair used is from the combings—the undercoat that comes naturally twice a year. It was said that the comparatively small quantity of hair from this dog had been woven into a piece of cloth.

Man Who Hates Flowers Cornered by a Woman

"Persons who love flowers," complained the man who wrote a column in the New York Sun and Globe, "are the most inconsiderate beings in the world."

"I hate flowers, you know. I loathe and despise them. Always I'm depressed, but that's my honest case. I try to like them, but I can't. Looking at them isn't so bad, but I detest the smell of them; it makes me sick."

"But does anybody think of this who happens to have flowers? Let some woman get flowers in their hands and immediately they begin sniffing at them into the noses of everybody in sight and demanding to know if they aren't the sweetest things ever. It doesn't do any good to try to wrinkle away or hold your head back or turn your cheek into the flowers instead of your nose. Those women can sin at a pair of nostrils ten feet away and never miss."

"You hold your breath in self-defense. Your poor nose you permit to be in the suffocating miasma for what time? When you withdraw it smiling, and murmuring that they certainly are the sweetest things ever. You just start to breathe again, and then the woman thrusts those obnoxious growths right smack at your nose again."—New York Sun and Globe.

The Second Fiddle

The Frenchman had been presented to the mayor of Louisville, to which town he had come to reside.

"Ah, sir, permit me to honor of giving you my congratulations, and to your talented family likewise. Be so good as to accept a beautiful gift, and I hope to have the honor of hearing some day to your performance."

"Pardon, monsieur," said the mayor, "you are mistaken. I know nothing whatever of music."

"Ah, but sir, you can see you call your hand-organ—you are a musician. I have heard of several couples of times and your wife plays the first violin, and you play the second fiddle to her!"
